Dear Parent

An important 21st century skill, critical thinking and analysis, depends heavily on research. This requires the ability to be able to sieve through the plethora of information and find what is desired. As mentors and guardians of the next generation it is on us to guide students in the right direction.

In today's scenario, internet has become an important tool for all the research. A click of the button gives details about anything and everything. But along with the 'desired' information children get exposed to much 'undesired' material too.

Keeping in mind easy accessibility of internet, we are responsible to keep our children safe from any negative impact. Google has taken the initiative to develop child safe search engine.

Encourage children to use www.kiddle.co and protect them from things that are not suitable for them.

Let's march together to make this world safe and happy for our children.

Warm regards
